2. The Theory of 'Honour Of Kings'

2.1 Related Introduction of 'Honour Of Kings'

'Honour Of Kings' is a mobile game of moba type developed and run by China Tencent Game Company, Tianmei Studio. It was formally tested on Android, OS and NS platforms on November 26, 2015. Players can compete fairly in the game community for 1V1, 3V3 or 5V5. 'Honour Of Kings' is a moba game. Moba is the abbreviation of English 'Multiplayer Online Battle Arena', which can be understood as multi-player online tactical competitive game[12].

This game provides 91 heroes character. Most of these characters are based on the well-known legendary characters in history. In the game, these legendary characters are given new character characteristics. And each character has different skills and attributes. They are divided into six categories: soldiers, tanks, assistants, masters, shooters and assassins. Each type of character assumes diverse responsibilities in game. Players need to select different types of characters to fight[4].

2.2 The Main Consumer Goods of 'Honour Of Kings'

There are two kinds of consumption psychology in the field of online game[5]: the one is 'pay for winning'—means in order to gain the game. The kind of consumption is primarily the male players. The other one is 'pay for love'—means paying for personal preferences. It is a type of 'self-satisfaction' consumption impulse, mostly female players. Male players paid for in-game in order to gain more experience. But the female players spend more money on dressing up and strive to be beautiful. They will spend their money on decorations and then consider other aspects of the game. Fig. 4 will show you the female players’ consumer goods top5.

As the main consumer goods—we called it skins. It can not only change the appearance of game character, but also provide a certain heroic attribute bonus. It can not only change the appearance of game heroes, but also provide a certain heroic attribute bonus. It just satisfies the consumption preferences of female players[13–15].
3. Female players' favorite skins of 'Honour Of Kings'

'Honour Of Kings' is a moba online competitive game. Generally, moba game's major players are male. But according to the survey, the proportion of 'Honour Of Kings's male players and female players was 54.1% and 45.9% respectively. Female players become the main consumers of the game[7].

Comparing with male players, female players pay greater attention to the appearance of skins. New skin in the game has traditionally become their consumer goods.

At present, there are 242 skins in the game. Next, the author will analyze two skins's visual design which is more popular among female players: Diao Chan’s skin—A Midsummer Night’s Dream, Wang Zhaojun’s skin—‘The two phoenixes fly side by side’.

4. Conclusion

The author takes the female players of the game as the object of investigation, through the form of questionnaires, carries on the investigation and research. The survey results demonstrate that the most important factors affecting women’s consumption are good-looking and their preferences. It can be said that men like to play funny game, while women prefer to play good-looking game. In this paper, the author chooses the skin A midsummer night’s dream of mobile game ‘Honour Of Kings’s as the research object. This skins’ prototype is representatives of Chinese traditional beauty. Its image can be said to follow the contemporary society, people’s perception of beautiful women. And it uses the female preferences visual elements like lotus, villus, petals, butterflies, fluorescence, etc. Female players are more emotional, and the characters in the game just reflect women’s longing for beautiful things.

At present, mobile intelligent platform provides a variety of shopping, social, leisure and entertainment applications. With the improvement of women’s social ability, their consumption ability also increases. While women enjoy the mobile game market, they also bring their consumption ability into the mobile game market. Nowadays, female players have become indispensable consumers in the mobile game market. When the mobile game companies develop game, they need to consider the psychological needs of female players. On the one hand, they can use the aesthetic elements that women like and put storytelling and continuously into the game. On the other hand, they can reduce the difficulty of the game and simplify the game process. Maybe they can obtain better market effect.
